First Peoples Earth Day Celebration at Panhe

Featuring Native American: Singers, Dancers, Speakers, Storytelling, Basketry Demonstration, Native Plant Demonstration, Native Foods & Guided Walks

The indigenous Village of Panhe was the historical home of the Juaneno/Acjachemen people and continues to be used as a ceremonial and reburial site. It is recognized as one of the major villages of the Juaneno/Acjachemen people. The village site of Panhe is within the San Mateo Archaeological District, which is on file with the Native American Heritage Commission as a sacred site. It is eligible for listing on the National Register of Historic Places and likely qualifies as a Traditional Cultural Property under federal law. A proposed Toll Road would come within feet of a Juaneno/Acjachemen cemetery currently used by the Juaneno/Acjachemen people.

California Native American cultural resources, habitation sites, burial sites, sacred sites, ceremonial sites, and places of worship are limited resources for Indian and non-Indian people. They are important to the culture and spiritual belief of California Native Americans and must be protected. Construction of the Toll Road, as approved by the TCA, would cause severe and irreparable damage to Panhe.

DIRECTIONS: From CA I-5 exit at Cristianitos in San Clemente and go East towards Camp Pendleton for 1 mile to the San Mateo Campground on the right. Access to Panhe is within the State Park
